CIA LANGUAGE INCENTIVE PROGRAM

STATINTL Reference: [REDACTED]

1. The following language incentive policies are effective 1 July 1973:

a. No retroactive designations will be made of either incentive languages or of employees as participants in the CIA Language Incentive Program.

b. Employees designated as participants in one language, who already possess a skill in a mutually intelligible language such as Hindi/Urdu or Thai/Lao, can receive an award in the new language only after attaining a higher proficiency level than their tested level in the mutually intelligible language. For example, an employee who attained a tested skill at the three level in Lao must attain the four level in Thai before receiving an award. Lists of the mutually intelligible languages are available from training officers.

c. The base level from which employees start when designated to the program is the highest tested level they achieved in a language no matter when they were tested.
